GENESEO — Out-of-this-world visitors have taken up permanent residence in Geneseo.

An 8-foot tall statue of Gort and a smaller statue of Klaatu from the 1951 movie "The Day the Earth Stood Still" were unveiled July 6.

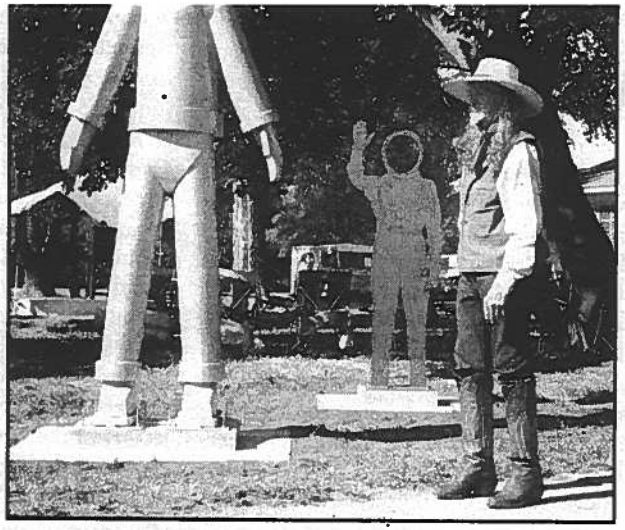

"I had this in my mind even before I was involved in the Geneseo Museum. It was something I thought about in my dreams," Geneseo City to promote, which is 'to the stars." We are looking to the stars every day in dimension G, which is Geneseo, Kan."

The museum, which houses the collection of late Geneseo resident Dr. Elmer D. Janzen, includes an array of alien-related memorabilia.

When Gray began working with the museum board in 2022, it decided to host a Kansas UFO day on July 2, which is International UFO Day. July.

"It's amazing where we've come in so short a time," Gray said. "Last year things grew — really nice growth last year. We had vendors for the first time last year and now we have twice as many vendors as we had last year. Things are really, really popping."

In addition to the museum, nestled in the southwest portion of town, a mural was recently completed downtown. Funding for the statute, by artist Bruce Bitter from B&B Metal, was via an attraction development grant from Kansas Tourism, and the Rice County Tourism office assisted with the downtown mural.
