Monitoring your screen time will be beneficial

By: TARA SOLOMON-SMITH
Wildcat District Extension

Anyone else cringe at their weekly screen time report? Digging a little deeper, I see it tells me how many 'pick ups' I have and where I look first. I hate to admit it, but based this report, I am very close to the average adult, checking my phone every 12 minutes. Yikes, talk about an eye opener and just like that morning cup of coffee... very much a habit for me!

Though technology often creates productivity and important connections, it can also cause stress. There are now apps to help us use it less and in some parts of the world, motels and restaurants offering digital detox discounts!

I had already been using the social media time limit feature on my phone, but I learned one more while writing this article. Apple provides a 'down time' option and google a 'wind down' feature. This is where you can allow only certain apps to be available at a designated time, phone calls are always available.

In a recent volunteer study, behavioral economists found that people are wanting to use their phones 31 percent less, but it is like the 'I want to floss my teeth before bed' scenario, when bedtime comes, it is hard to make yourself do that. Christine Carter with the Greater Good Science Center, provides these tips you can do today to strategically utilize your technology:

- Check email intentionally, not compulsively. Designate three specific times today that you'll read and respond to your email, and keep your mail application closed (and alerts off) at all other times.
- Decide on a few places where you will ban your smartphone use. (Consider starting with the dining room table, your bed, and the bathroom.) If you don't have your phone in the same room, you'll be a lot less tempted to check it.
- Use social media and email to strengthen your real-life relationships. For example, each morning, send an email telling someone what you really appreciate about them.

What About the Kids?

Adults are not the only ones spending more time with screens. Did you know, children ages 8 to 18, spend more time with screens than any activity but sleeping? Try swapping some of your digital entertainment for the joys of life beyond the screen with fun ideas from screenfree.org's

Unplug to Giggle Guide at https://www.screenfree.org/unplug-to-giggle/I have designated my 'down time' on my phone and am reading more physical books rather than apps before bed. What will you do to be more intentional about your screen time? Contact me at tsolomon@ksu.edu or 620-724-8233.

Sheriff's report

Arrests made

Four people were arrested recently in connection with separate incidents and by different law enforcement agents.

Ronald Albin, 61, of Neodesha, was arrested Monday by Neodesha police on the charge of domestic violence/battery. He was processed and released on a $1,500 bond after making his first court appearance.

Stephanie Murdene Willard, 41, of Fredonia, was arrested Monday by Fredonia police on the charge of disorderly conduct. She was jailed and remained in custody in lieu of $500 cash bond, awaiting a Fredonia municipal court hearing.

Dennis Lee Hearld, 63, of Fredonia, was arrested Tuesday by the Wilson County Sheriff's Department on the charge of battery. He was jailed and remained in custody without bond, awaiting a first court appearance.

Terry Martin, 61, of Republic, Mo., was arrested Wednesday by the Kansas Highway Patrol on the charge of driving under the influence of intoxicants. She was jailed and remained in custody without bond, awaiting a first court appearance.

USDA funds available for help with organic certification

USDA's Farm Service Agency announced that organic producers and handlers can apply for USDA funds to assist with the cost of receiving and maintaining organic certification through the Organic Certification Cost Share Program. Applications for eligible certification expenses paid between Oct. 1, 2020, and Sept. 30, 2021, are due Nov. 1, 2021.

OCCSP provides cost-share assistance to producers and handlers of agricultural products for the costs of obtaining or maintaining organic certification under the USDA's National Organic Program. Eligible producers include any certified producers or handlers who have paid organic certification fees to a USDA-accredited certifying agent. Producers can be reimbursed for expenses including application fees, inspection costs, fees related to equivalency agreement and arrangement requirements, travel expenses for inspectors, user fees, sales assessments and postage.

For 2021, OCCSP will reimburse 50 percent of a certified operation's allowable certification costs, up to a maximum of $500 for each of the following categories or "scopes:"

- crops;
- wild crops;
- livestock;
- processing/handling;
- state organic program fees.

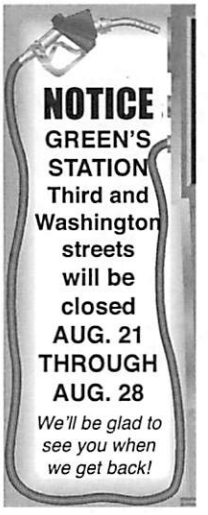

Organic farmers and ranchers may apply through an FSA county office or a participating state agency.

More Information

To learn more about organic certification cost share, please visit the OCCSP webpage, visit usda.gov/organic.

Post-pandemic economic conditions have created problems for dine-in restaurants: prices are skyrocketing, supplies are limited and uncertain, key employees are often hard to find. But local restaurants need your continued patronage. Please be patient, as economic conditions work on getting this country back to normal conditions in all areas. Local restaurants want to be a big part of life!
