Post-harvest hay field evaluations

Harvest for hay may be a greater stress on our forage stands than we'd like to give it credit for. We know from grazing studies if we remove 80% of a plant's leaf area, we stop root growth for as long as 12 days. Having often does that – and maybe more.

Now is a good time to return not uncommon to get a few ironweed scattered across a field and often a few broadleaf weeds won't do much harm. If those weeds are hemp dogbane or sericea, however, a post-harvest or late summer treatment plan may be of value. Keep an eye on the grasses you are seeing as well. Just because it's green
